INTERESTING TO WOUNDED AND DISCHARGED
SOLDIERS.

Mr. French, the Second Auditor of the Treasury Department, has been overwhelmed within the last few days with letters from discharged soldiers. By a late act of Congress soldiers discharged from the army by reason of wounds received in battle are entitled to the United States bounty; but this law is generally misconstrued, so that soldiers discharged for disability and other causes excepting wounds in battle, imagine themselves entitled to the bounty. A right understanding of the law would save soldiers, as well as the Treasury Department, much work and trouble.
